

The Diabetes Communicator* Editorial Board: Call for Applications

The Diabetes Communicator (DC) editorial board is seeking new board members.

To ensure a multidisciplinary team on the editorial board, we are seeking candidates in the professions of medicine, nursing, nutrition, pharmacy, physical activity and social work. Other professions, as related to diabetes, will be considered. Board members serve an initial 2-year term and may be reappointed for 2 additional terms of office. In addition, candidates should be existing members of Diabetes Canada or agree to become members upon appointment.

Board Member Responsibilities

- (a) Collaborate with members of the editorial team to identify themes for issues and potential topics of relevance to the readership.
- (b) Provide a network into the diabetes healthcare community to supply suitable author candidates for articles in DC.
- (c) Supply written articles for DC when required.
- (d) Review and approve the content of articles in DC to ensure that they are factually accurate, consistent with Diabetes Canada policies and relevant to the target audience.
- (e) Act as an associate editor on at least 1 issue per year.
- (f) Attend meetings and teleconferences when scheduled.

The board currently has 3 teleconferences and 1 annual in-person meeting at the Diabetes Canada professional conference.

Interested Applicants Should:

- be a professional member in good standing with Diabetes Canada.
- complete the following application form, along with 2 samples of written work (preferably under 2000 words), and email to: Alarica.Fernandes@diabetes.ca. Incomplete application forms will not be considered.
